Wayne State Helps Recruit Abortionists

Having Abortionist as Featured Speaker to Recruit Students Into Abortion

ARLINGTON, Virg. - Wayne State in Detroit, Michigan is hosting abortionist Dr. Alberto Hodari on Friday, who is alleged to have performed fatal abortions on two Michigan women.

Tamia Russell and Chivon Williams both died from Hodari's abortions, and, at least, four other women filed charges against Hodari for serious malpractice. Over the past 25 years, at least 23 lawsuits have been filed against Hodari. Wayne State is allowing this speaker to fulfill required seminars and encourages students to attend.

Wayne State Physician's Assistant student Joanie Barrett said, "Many women have abortions because they feel that is their only option, and the abortion industry profits off their fear and desperation. That is not a choice. We need to provide real options for women, showing them that they can have their education, career or whatever is important to them, and have their child as well."

The undergraduate Students for Life group has been involved with giving women resources and choices, notably by volunteering at a local pregnancy center, Imago Dei, which gives resources to expectant mothers and counsels them to choose life.

"I hope Dr. Hodari tells these medical students the truth: that you make decent money and someone else cleans up all the body parts," said SFLA Executive Director Kristan Hawkins. "If you want a job dealing in death, misery, trauma, and hurting women, this is the one for you. It doesn't pay as good as a drug lord or crime boss, but you definitely get to kill more people and be protected by a billion dollar industry. We're told abortion is to be safe, legal, and rare, and, yet, this is a man whose only financial interest is to hurt as many women and children as possible."

Students for Life of America was founded in 1987 as American Collegians for Life. It is the only pro-life organization which focuses on organizing college students at the grassroots level. With five full-time staff members and five field agents traveling across the country, Students for Life of America has started 164 campus pro-life groups in the past year. There are now over 385 active pro-life college groups across the United States, with several of those groups at medical schools.
