Censored Again: YouTube Bans Video Catching Planned Parenthood Staffer Admitting Infanticide "does happen"

October 2008 undercover video shot by Students for Life uncovers truth about babies born alive during abortions

Arlington, VA - On Monday November 3rd, YouTube banned a third and fourth video from Students for Life of America (SFLA). On October 30th, SFLA released undercover footage of a nurse at a Title X, federally funded Freehold, New Jersey Planned Parenthood facility describing how an abortion would be performed on a 22 week unborn child. View the videos on Eyeblast here:

- Extended Verison: <http://www.eyeblast.tv/public/video.aspx?v=e46UZuaGSU>

In the footage, a Planned Parenthood nurse describes to a pregnant woman that the abortion would entail delivering her son alive and, after the woman asks if the baby can be born alive, the nurse admits that "it does happen, but it wouldn't be able to survive on its own so eventually the baby does die."

These are the third and fourth SFLA videos to be banned by YouTube since August of this year. Students for Life of America believes YouTube is cooperating with the agenda of Planned Parenthood, the nation's largest abortion provider, to ban videos uncovering the truth about the organization.

As with the previous 2 SFLA banned videos, YouTube removed the video from their website citing that the video was "content inappropriate" and had been "removed due to terms of use violation."

Previously YouTube banned videos from SFLA include:

- The August 6th video SFLA produced exposing Planned Parenthood's "Take Care Down There" website showing their explicit oral sex video and proving that the Oregon

Planned Parenthood responsible for the website was government funded.

- The October 8th video SFLA produced exposing the Charlotte, North Carolina Planned Parenthood covering up statutory rape.

In addition this August, YouTube took down 4 videos posted by Live Action Films exposing Planned Parenthood officials accepting racist donations, citing the same reason.

SFLA's Executive Director, Kristan Hawkins remarked, "YouTube's bias is clearly visible with these actions. There is no reason for them to take down videos which expose the truth about the nation's largest abortion provider. YouTube is no friend to pro-lifers." She further remarked that "If Planned Parenthood isn't doing anything wrong and illegal, then why are they and their allies aggressively hiding videos from the public that show their staffers explaining their medical procedures to patients, the women they claim to care about?"

Students for Life of America is asking all those deeply concerned about this censorship to call YouTube at 1-650-253-0000 and demand that that allow the banned SFLA videos on their site.

On YouTube's website, it explains that inappropriate content means the following, none of which explain the reasons for the banning of the SFLA video:

- Graphic sexual activity:
- Nudity
- Suggestive, but without nudity
- Shocking or disgusting content
- Promotes hatred or violence against a protected group
- Harmful dangerous acts

Background on the SFLA Video

Students for Life of America (SFLA) released undercover footage of a nurse at a Title X, federally funded Freehold, New Jersey Planned Parenthood facility describing how an abortion would be performed on a 22 week unborn child.

In the footage, the Planned Parenthood nurse describes to the pregnant woman that the abortion would entail delivering her son alive, and after the woman asks if the baby can be born alive, the nurse admits that "it does happen, but it wouldn't be able to survive on its own so eventually the baby does die."

As evidenced in the SFLA video, the practice of allowing babies born alive during abortions to die, which is defined as infanticide, is still being practiced today.
